

THEATRE ROYAL, DERBY.

Mr. & Mrs. Manly

Respectfully announce to their Friends and the Public in general that their

BENEFIT

IS APPOINTED FOR

FRIDAY, June 1st, 1838,

BEING THE

LAST NIGHT OF THE SEASON,

When will be presented the fashionable Comedy of THE

JEALOUS WIFE.

Mr. Oakly, Mr. WOOLGAR—Major Oakly, Mr. NUNN—Charles, Mr. TOWERS
Russet, Mr. WASS—Sir Harry Beagle, Mr. BODDIE
Lord Trinket, . . . Mr. GORDON—Capt. O' Cutter, . . . Mr. C. MANLY
Paris, Mr. FITZROY—Tom Mr. JONES—William, Mr. GRINDALL
Mrs. Oakly, Mrs. NUNN—Lady Freeloze, Mrs. MANLY—Harriet, Mrs. GORDON
Toilet, Miss WOOLGAR—Chambermaid, Mrs. WASS.

After which, for the first time here, THE

REMINISCENCES OF SONA,

ILLUSTRATED BY IMITATIVE TABLEUX VIVANS—

TABLEAU 1st.—“Black Ey'd Susan” . . sung by Mrs. TOWERS
TABLEAU 2nd.—“Honest Ben” sung by Mr. WOOLGAR
TABLEAU 3rd.—“Death of Nelson” . . . sung by Mr. WOOLGAR
TABLEAU 4th.—“Rule Britannia” . . . sung by Mrs. TOWERS

The whole to conclude with the Melo-Drama, called

ZEMBUCA;

OR, THE

Net-Maker and his Wife.

Zembuca, the King of Persia, is a turbulent Tyrant, who oppresses all within his influence. He conceives a criminal passion for Almazaide, the betrothed wife of his friend, General Selim, of whose valour and popularity he feels jealous; to remedy this, he dispatches him on an expedition against a powerful body of insurgents, with promises of instant support. The succours are purposely withheld, which occasions the defeat of his General, and which Zembuca uses as the base pretext for his disgrace and banishment. Selim is proscribed, and a reward offered for his head. The persecuted fugitive finds shelter in the Net-Maker's Cottage, who goes abroad for information; In his absence, Buffardo comes deputed by the amorous Monarch to bring his wife to the Royal Haram. Selim who is concealed, writes with a pencil, on paper, requesting her to consent, in appearance—she obeys and he, under favor of a female disguise, passes for her, and is conducted in silence to the Haram, by the stupid Buffardo.—Here the unfortunate General is met by his friend Korac, an Officer whose life he had saved in battle, and who, though the confidante of Zembuca, is the warm friend of his preserver, Selim. The Tyrant discovers his unfortunate victim, and chains him in a dungeon, from whence the Net-Maker releases him. Korac makes known to Selim that Zembuca is an Usurper, and that he is the legitimate Prince: emboldened by this, and distracted with fear for the safety of Almazaide, who is in the Tyrant's power, he proclaims himself, levies an army and advances against Zembuca, whom he defeats, routs his adherents, and establishes in peace the legitimate Sovereignty.

Zembuca, Mr. FITZROY—Korac, Mr. TOWERS—Buffardo, Mr. BODDIE
Crier, . . Mr. GRINDALL—Saib, . . Mr. GORDON—Tanem . . Mr. C. MANLY
Selim, Mr. NUNN—Mirza, (the Net-Maker), Mr. WOOLGAR
Hassan, Mr. GREEN—Ahdallah, Mr. JONES—Spear Guard, Mr. WASS
Almazaide, Mrs. NUNN—Katcheka, Mrs. TOWERS
Ebra, (the Net-Maker's Wife), Mrs. MANLY

All demands on the Theatre to be sent to Mr. Manly, on FRIDAY at 12 o'clock.

BOXES, 3s.—UPPER BOXES, 2s. 6d.—PIT, 2s.—GALLERY, 1s.

SECOND PRICE, Boxes, 2s.—Upper Boxes, 1s. 6d.—Pit, 1s.—Gallery, 6d.

Doors to be opened at Six, performance to commence at Seven o'clock.

Tickets to be had of Mr. Manly, at Miss Brewer's, St. Mary's
Gate, and of J. Storer, Printer, hereof.